

GM crops: Protesters go back to the battlefields

A decade ago anti-GM protesters tore up fields and Britain roundly rejected so-called 'Frankenfood'. Now, as researchers trial new crops, activists are once more squaring up to the scientists. But have the arguments changed?

View the original article here: ...something beautiful: GM crops: protesters go back to the battlefields