

Rapid DNA sequencing may soon be routine part of each patient's medical record

Rapid DNA sequencing may soon become a routine part of each individual's medical record, providing enormous information previously sequestered in the human genome's 3 billion nucleotide bases.

View the original article here: Rapid DNA sequencing may soon be routine part of each patient's medical record