

European activists link up against GM wheat

Around 200 protestors from across the UK, Ireland, France and Belgium have been marching against the return of open air GM field testing. The Flour Back group joined with Volunteer Reapers¹ of France to make their way towards the site before being stopped by police lines. On Friday, an order was passed to prevent the protestors from entering because of contamination fears.

View the original article here: European activists link up against GM wheat – Farming UK