

Chemical exposure ups descendants' sensitivity to stress

Animals whose ancestors were exposed to an environmental compound generations earlier have been found to developed an increased reaction to stress, according to a new study.

View the original article here: Chemical exposure ups descendants' sensitivity to stress