

U.S. House biotech proposal would bypass courts-critic

A provision in a U.S. House bill would allow farmers to grow genetically modified crops while court battles are under way to decide if the plants are safe, said a biotech skeptic on Tuesday, calling the idea an unprecedented muzzle on federal judges.

View the original article here: U.S. House biotech proposal would bypass courts-critic