

Central body to oversee 'biobanks' storing human tissue

The creation of a single Government-funded body to oversee the retention of human tissue samples has moved a step closer with the preparation of a report by an expert group on health research.

View the original article here: Central body to oversee 'biobanks' storing human tissue focus of report – Irish Times