

GMO labeling measure receives prop number for November ballot

California's Right to Know Genetically Engineered Food Act will be on November's ballot as Proposition 37, according to proposition numbers released late yesterday by the California Secretary of State's office. The Right to Know measure calls for labeling genetically engineered foods and, if passed, would be the first law in the United States requiring labeling of a wide range of genetically engineered foods.

View the original article here: GMO labeling measure receives prop number for November ballot