

The economics of GM food labels

View the full report from the International Food Policy Research Institute to understand their position on the possible GM food labeling that could begin in California after November's election. The labeling initiative has been full of controversy since before the proposition (37) got its official number on the ballot.

View the original article here: The Economics of GM Food Labels: An Evaluation of Mandatory ...