

GM government panel warns New Zealand that it could miss the GM bus

New Zealand has been issued an ultimatum by GM heavyweights – change our tune on genetically modified food or watch our exporting lifeblood lag behind the rest of the world.

The warning was delivered yesterday by a high-powered panel including the US Government's bio-tech trade envoy and the vice-president of US giant DuPont Agricultural Biotechnology.

View the original article here: GM government panel warns New Zealand that it could miss the GM bus