

Genetic Literacy Project cited in Maui debate over GM labeling

image not found or type unknown

Are genetically engineered food products safe? And, should such products be labeled to give consumers informed choices?

Those questions hung over the Council Chambers on Friday as Maui County Council members heard sometimes emotional testimony, mostly in favor of requiring the labeling of food with genetically modified organisms, also known as GMOs.

View the original article here: Genetic Literacy Project cited in Maui debate over GM labeling