

FDA challenges stem cell therapy companies

image not found or type unknown

The Food and Drug Administration is stepping up its oversight of companies selling unproven and unlicensed stem-cell therapies and emerging industry with a spotty ethical and medical track record.

View the original article here: FDA challenges stem cell therapy companies