

Whole Foods suffers second thoughts on Prop. 37

The campaign over Proposition 37 isn't as simple as it might seem at first glance. On the Nov. 6 ballot, the Genetically Engineered Labeling Initiative would mandate that genetically modified foods be given special labels. Whole Foods Market, the giant health-foods store, originally backed the initiative. But since then it has taken two giant steps backwards from its original support.

View the original article here: Whole Foods suffers second thoughts on Prop. 37