

Prop 37 — defeat or not — marks food movement coming of age

If Proposition 37, California's GMO labeling measure, gets voted down today, it will be unfortunate and frustrating for many. But it won't happen for lack of a movement. If that happens and Monsanto takes the day, it won't be because there's not a bona fide movement gathering steam. On the contrary, I'd say the good food movement — awkward adolescent that it is — may have just had a taste of its first stiff drink.

View the original story here: GMO labeling or no, a movement comes of age