

Cloning versus habitat protection in wildlife conservation

Biotechnicians want to use cloning to save endangered species, but they are having only limited success. Critics say that the push toward a new era of wildlife conservation trivializes extinction and funding would be better spent on preserving animal habitats.

View the original article here: Scientists Hope Cloning Will Save Endangered Animals