

Attack of the clone cliches

A story in the New York Post on Sunday warned New Yorkers about a new threat menacing our city: a pair of cloned collie mixes.

To quote from the story:

Beware the canine clones!

An Upper West Side man loved his pet, Astro, so much, he made a hat out of the pooch's fur — and cloned him into two more dogs.

Now he defiantly lets his copycat collies run around Central Park without a leash — and neighbors say dogs are terrorizing the Upper West Side.

"This is a tragedy waiting to happen," said one man who claims the dogs charged at his puppy and bit his hand. "The city knows about this problem and does nothing. The law has no teeth, so to speak."

View the original post here: Attack of the clone cliches!