

Justice Department ends Monsanto Investigation

While we were celebrating Thanksgiving, Monsanto had much to be thankful for, too. Last month, the Department of Justice quietly scrapped an investigation begun in January 2010 into anticompetitive practices in the American seed market that Monsanto dominates like an extra-mean, extra-genetically-modified Hulk. Today, Hulk “pleased.”

Additional Resources:

- DOJ Mysteriously Quits Monsanto Antitrust Investigation,” Mother Jones
- “The Monopoly Named Monsanto,” TriplePundit

View the original article here: Justice Department ditches Monsanto investigation