

The push to label genetically modified foods in Florida

The following is an edited excerpt.

Do you have a right to know what's in your food?

A big battle between businesses, including Monsanto and Dupont, and thousands of families is gearing up in Florida.

More than eight thousand Floridians have signed a petition to support labeling genetically modified foods.

Now for the first time, Florida lawmakers may take up the issue.

Read the full article here: The push to label genetically modified foods in Florida