

Whole Foods to label all genetically modified products by 2018

The following is an excerpt.

Whole Foods Market, the supermarket chain known for its organic inventory, said Friday that it will aim for “full GMO transparency” within five years.

By 2018, the Austin, Texas, chain plans to slap labels on all products in its U.S. and Canadian stores that qualify as GMOs, or genetically modified organisms.

View the original article here: Whole Foods to label all genetically modified products by 2018