

Engineered extremophile brews bulk chemical

The following is an excerpt.

US researchers have engineered a heat-loving microbe to produce a bulk chemical from carbon dioxide and hydrogen. Their results may provide a viable industrial alternative to blue-green algae, which have a much lower efficiency for such chemical transformations.

Read the full article here: Engineered extremophile brews bulk chemical