

How do identical twins develop different personalities?

The following is an excerpt. Find a link to the full story below.

Despite having the same genetic makeup, identical twins have their own distinctive personalities. Just how their individuality emerges has remained a bit of a mystery. But now, researchers have found that life experiences affect brain development — and this may help us understand how personalities form.

View the full story here: The Mystery of How Identical Twins Develop Different Personalities