

Kauai Council delays decision on modified crops

The Kauai County Council will wait for legal opinions before deciding whether to approve a measure that would require agricultural operations to disclose if they are growing genetically modified crops and their use of pesticides.

The council Monday unanimously deferred a decision until Sept. 9 for the proposal that also would create buffer zones for large farm operations.

Read the full, original story here: Kauai Council delays decision on modified crops

Kauai Council delays decision on modified crops