

DNA confirms two women who met via social media are identical twins

Adopted, raised on different continents, not knowing about each other, two sisters re-unite accidentally because of YouTube and Facebook.

Samantha Futerman, 26, an aspiring actress in Los Angeles posted a video on YouTube about being adopted and not looking like the rest of her family. That got the attention halfway across the world of Anais Bordier, 26, a design student from Paris living in London.

She noted the amazing resemblance in looks, and sent Samantha a message on Facebook. They determined they had both been adopted in South Korea, were born on the same date in the same city.

Now, they have gotten together many times and believed they were identical twins. But they wanted complete confirmation.

This week, they got it. DNA tests confirmed they are sisters, identical twins

Read the full, original story: Identical twins meet via social media 26 years after separation at birth, DNA confirms