

Pro-GMO documentary 'Food Evolution' censored in France?

In a confidential report, the cinematographic distribution company 2iFilms recounts its misadventures concerning the broadcasting of the documentary Food Evolution The film tackles a sensitive subject: exposing the demonization tactics used by anti-GMOs groups against crop biotechnology.

...

When 2iFilms, a young cinematographic distribution company created in 2018, decided to distribute the film in France it couldn't imagine facing a well-organized campaign to censor the documentary.

...

The report exposes 2iFilms misadventures with Food Evolution, which began with a surprising "not recommended by French cinema". Submitted at the end of December 2018 to obtain the label "Art and Essay", the film was refused a month later by the college of experts of AFCAE (French Association of cinemas of art and essay).

With surprising unanimity: not a single voice was in favor of the documentary!" This film obtained the worst vote ever recorded by the committee of experts, " laments Eddy Agnassia [one of the managers of 2iFilms]

[Editor's note: This article was published in French and has been translated and edited for clarity.]

Read full, original article: Documentary Food Evolution: predictable censorship