

A nutritionist reflects on the sad state of health education about GMOs and farming at schools and universities